

STUDENT NURSE MYTHBusters

The Queen's Nursing
Institute

MythBuster #1

You need more qualifications as a General Practice Nurse

GP nursing is very specific but you will learn all the skills you need on the job! Some GPs will train you up in clinic with the practice nurses, others will put you onto the fundamentals of primary care course at university. However, you don't need anything other than your nursing degree to apply for a GP nursing post.

Find out more: www.qni.org.uk/students